Benefits for the hosting partners

Carlo Altavilla:

“Improving the mobility of researchers, knowledge sharing and joint programming are the main benefits of participating in the Marie Curie Action. Working in collaboration has great potential. By combining the knowledge and interest of researchers involved in the project we aim at creating a long lasting relationship among the participating institutions.”

Enrico Marelli:

"We shall have the opportunity to carefully investigate (thanks to the exchange of experts and scholars) causes, characteristics and consequences of a big economic and social problem: youth unemployment; to analyse the impact of the recent financial and global crisis; to compare policies implemented - both in the EU and in other European countries - to tackle it."

Benefits for the hosting partners

Olga Demidova: “Participation in the project Marie Curie will allow me and my colleagues in the HSE visit 3 universities in Italy and one in the UK. We look forward to a fruitful scientific cooperation. Upon completion of the project is planned to publish a joint collection of works.”
